Mayor: Last city council meeting is 'bittersweet'

'Honour to serve our citizens'. Mayor, councillors reflect on closing of 13th council

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

Several members of city council will experience feelings of sadness today, mixed with excitement about the start of a new chapter, as they attend their last formal meeting at the municipal level.

In comments provided in advance to Metro, Mayor Sam Katz will tell his colleagues this morning the final sitting of the 13th city council will "certainly be bittersweet."

"Through the years, council has served together, having experienced many issues impacting Winnipeg from a variety of perspectives" he states in an excerpt of his speech.

"While on many occasions we have seen matters differently, we have, on numerous others, agreed unanimously.

"We have always though, even with differing stances, worked with the heart and the intent to make our city, this wonderful community in the heart of the continent, the best it can possibly be.

"I am truly proud to have had the honour to serve our citizens with them all."

Dan Vandal, who represented St. Boniface as councillor for the better part of two decades, said he has mixed feelings.

"I'm welcoming a new challenge and a change," said Vandal, who'll be the Liberal Party candidate in St. B during next year's federal election.

"But at the same time it's been a large part of my life for the last 20 years, so I'm going to miss being around here. I've met a lot of great people, political people and administrative people, and it's going to be a little difficult for me."

Paula Havixbeck said she's been touched by all of the cards and letters she's received from the public and people at city hall.

She also hopes to be elected mayor, to continue to see through worthy projects.

"I really have come to love being a city councillor. I feel that I'm leaving the councillor's seat knowing in full conscience I've done everything possible at a local level, and there's more to do at a big-picture level now."

Council should focus on the other kind of green: Sanders

Money isn't everything. Mayoral candidate says environment needs more attention

COLIN FAST
Metro World News

The "greening effect" should get as much consideration as the greenback when city council makes decisions about new developments and programs, says David Sanders.

The mayoral candidate outlined his sustainability platform during an announcement at Millennium Library Park on Tuesday.

Currently, the city's administrative guidelines require the "financial, regulatory, environmental, human resources, or other implications" to be included in city reports. While every one has an economic impact statement, environmental considerations are rarely mentioned, said Sanders.

"Each council decision should also consider its greening effect, the consequences for a more sustainable and environmentally responsible Winnipeg community, and any alternatives which deserve consideration."

He pointed out several areas where he said the city can enhance sustainability such as preserving green space and urban forests, increasing recycling and composting rates, and using more alternative energy sources.

Sanders also pledged to revise city purchasing policies to place value on "local training and employment, and social and economic benefits."

Sanders said he supports the One Green City plan released earlier this year by Transition Winnipeg. The advocacy group said Winnipeg needs to abandon its growth-oriented approach to development, and focus on developing a "low carbon, resilient city" instead.

Art. The BIZ gets a makeover

Downtown Winnipeg BIZ is adding a touch of art to the city's core.

The BIZ unveiled eight original artworks Tuesday morning that are now displayed in the formerly blacked-out windows of the Dollarama store on Portage Avenue across from MTS Centre.

"Art adds to a complete downtown community and can encourage more people to visit shopping, dining and entertainment establishments," said the BIZ's Ari Driver.

The initiative, called Urban Art Gallery, saw a jury choose the eight pieces.

The winning Winnipeg artists not only had their work displayed downtown, but they were all given a $500 honorarium for their designs.

"I think it's a fabulous idea," said Link Phillips, whose piece 'Big Love' was one of the artworks chosen.

"It exposes artists to the public and the public to the artists in a way that they wouldn't normally get."

Action needed on missing, murdered women, city told

Inquiry or roundtable. 'We have to do everything that we can to try and address this issue': Coun. Dan Vandal

BERNICE PONTANILLA

Coun. Dan Vandal, seen in this photo, said he plans to introduce a motion on missing and murdered indigenous women. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Garnering city council's support for an inquiry or roundtable on missing and murdered indigenous women is the goal of a motion by outgoing St. Boniface Coun. Dan Vandal.

Vandal said he plans to present his motion during Wednesday's city council meeting, the last one before the Oct. 22 election. Vandal is not running for re-election.

"It's not only a national issue, I think it's an issue that affects cities, especially a city like Winnipeg, where we have a high indigenous population and our fastest growing population is young aboriginal people," he said.

Vandal said it was the homicide of 15-year-old Tina Fontaine, whose body was found in the Red River in August, which moved him to act.

"There were thousands of people who were marching to The Forks that evening, and you could feel the emotion and the sorrow and the grief that's in our city now," he said, then mentioned the current efforts to drag the river.

"We have to do everything that we can to try and address this issue."

His motion also calls on the city's police board to task police "to do all things necessary to provide a proactive approach to prevent, investigate and solve the plight of missing and murdered indigenous women in Winnipeg."

Now in stable condition

Two arrested in man's stabbing

Winnipeg police have arrested a sex-trade worker and another woman in connection with a stabbing early Monday morning.

Police said just before 1 a.m., emergency workers went to a home on Stella Avenue and found a 53-year-old man with stab wounds.

He was taken to hospital in critical condition, but was upgraded to stable.

According to police, the victim and one of the suspects, a sex-trade worker, came to an agreement for sexual services. They both then drove to the Stella Avenue home, where the second woman was located.

Police say the second woman broke into the victim's vehicle and stole property. She then went back into the house, armed herself with a weapon and demanded the victim's bank-card PIN.

Lisa Anne McNeilly, 28, and Liberty Devine Indigo Rowland, 30, are facing several robbery and assault charges. METRO

Man, woman charged

Police solve stolen vehicles case

A man and woman are facing several charges following a Winnipeg Police Service and RCMP investigation of stolen vehicles.

The alleged thefts occurred between May 30 and Sept. 18 of this year, with licence plates being stolen along with the vehicles.

Police said a suspect and his passenger in a vehicle were arrested just before midnight on Sept. 18, in the 700 block of Laxdal Drive.

At that time, the suspect was driving a 2014 Toyota Corolla that had been reported stolen from the rural community of Oakbluff. It had a licence plate stolen from a vehicle in the River Heights area on Sept. 10.

Kyle Charles Bickford, 24, and Juanita Florentine Marie Nagam, 26, both of Winnipeg, are facing more than 30 charges between them, including possession of property obtained by crime, theft and failure to comply with probation orders. METRO

Netflix emboldened by PM in fight with CRTC

Harper: No 'Netflix tax.'
Internet video-streaming company says it won't turn over corporate info to broadcast regulator

Experts say a move by Netflix to defy the will of Canada's broadcast regulator calls into question its very authority to institute any rules governing Internet-based video service providers.

And the Prime Minister's Office is being blamed for forcing the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission into a corner.

Netflix has told the CRTC it won't turn over sensitive corporate information, despite being ordered to do so at a hearing last Friday.

The online video streaming company says it doesn't have guarantees that the subscriber and programming information will be kept secret.

Perhaps more importantly, Netflix says it does not recognize the CRTC's authority over it under the Broadcasting Act.

Industry watchers are torn over whether the defiance will lead to a court battle.

But they say Netflix is standing up to the regulator after being emboldened by Prime Minister Stephen Harper, who has said his government will not allow levies against online video services to pay for production of Canadian content, something he has referred to as a "Netflix tax." Canada gives its support to strikes against ISIS in Syria

Canada added its support Tuesday to the U.S. and Arab airstrikes on militant targets inside Syria, but is not involved militarily.

A senior government official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, confirmed that Canada has made no military contribution to the air offensive, which for the first time targeted the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) on Syrian territory.

Canada has 69 special forces advisers in Iraq and has offered two military transport planes to deliver assistance to displaced civilians and weapons to the Kurdish fighters in northern Iraq who are facing ISIS on the ground.

A spokesman for Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird said Canada supports this week's U.S.-led military action. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Talko the town: A voice message app

The new voice mail?
People can record a spoken-word message and send it to someone to listen to at any time

Longtime technology guru Ray Ozzie wants to bring back the emotions of the human voice to phones.

His mission began more than two years ago as Ozzie noticed people were increasingly communicating through texts, emails and social media posts instead of calling each other.

Ozzie, 58, Microsoft's former chief software architect, hopes to orchestrate voice's comeback through Talko, a mobile application being released Tuesday for the iPhone. A version for Android phones is expected in a few months.

Talko sends the equivalent of text messages in the form of a spoken word. Talko users can record a voice message and send it over the Internet to anyone else with the app. Recipients listen to the recording when it's convenient, rather than being interrupted by a traditional phone call.

Silly kids, this park is for adults

An interactive, glow-in-the-dark playground for adults has been installed in Boston. "Swing Time" is made up of 20 ring-shaped swings which are fitted with micro-controllers which activate LED lighting when the swing moves, illuminating the outdoor space with blue and purple hues that change according to the motion of the seat. Custom-fabricated from welded polypropylene, the swings emit a static white light when inactive. Designed in three different sizes to encourage all of Boston's citizens to interact with the installation, the swings are part of an experimental urban park project.

Trial. Nortel's intellectual property not created solely in Canada, says U.S. lawyer

It's a fallacy to think of Nortel Networks as just a Canadian company and that its intellectual property was created solely in Canada, a lawyer for its U.S. subsidiary said Tuesday at a cross-border bankruptcy trial that will decide how remaining assets are shared among creditors.

"I think we can all agree now that Nortel was actually a multinational enterprise, global in nature, with separate corporate entities, separate groups of creditors spread around the world," said James Bromley from Wilmington, Del., by videolink.

While Canada certainly had a large role in research and development, Nortel's R&D took place all over the world, Bromley added.

Competing groups of creditors have been focusing on the legal interpretation of a 10-year-old agreement to determine how to divvy up about $4.5 billion US from the sale of Nortel's patents.

RIDING THE SAVE THE RHINO BANDWAGON

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

On Sunday, a zoo in the Czech Republic set fire to 60 kilograms of rhinoceros horn, a fitting overture to the fifth annual World Rhino Day, which followed in various rhino-aware locales around the world on Monday.

The rhino is being poached to extinction for its horn, which is used in traditional medicine and as an aphrodisiac in Asia.

A rumour going around — that a Vietnamese minister's relative was cured of cancer with rhino horn — hasn't helped.

Hasn't helped the rhino, that is.

At the beginning of the 20th century, there were 500,000 rhinos roaming Africa and Asia.

Today, there are 29,000. In Sumatra, the rhino population is down to less than 100. In Java, there are 35-45 left.

There is some good news, rhino fans.

The southern white rhino has come back, from 50 individuals early in the 20th century to 20,000 today. But now poaching threatens to reverse those gains.

The rhino, in short, is in a sorry state.

Unfortunately, they are not really sexy beasts and Save the Rhino doesn't have the same urgent resonance as Save the Tigers or Save the Whales.

Rhino solidarity

The rhino, in short, is in a sorry state. Unfortunately, they are not really sexy beasts and Save the Rhino doesn't have the same urgent resonance as Save the Tiger or Save the Whales. I'm not sure why I'm feeling such solidarity for the rhinoceros.... Maybe I can relate to its reputation for near-sighted stubbornness. But when you add up the facts, rhinos are worth saving.

I'm not sure why I'm feeling such solidarity for the rhinoceros (which means "nose horn," of course).

Maybe I can relate to its reputation for near-sighted stubbornness. But when you add up the facts, rhinos are worth saving:

- Even though they weigh in at a tonne on average, rhinos are vegetarians. They eat anywhere from 50 to 100 kilos of food a day. Trying picking up that grocery bill! Also, what they eat depends on the species.
- There are white rhinos and black rhinos, and both species are actually gray. (Black rhinos eat shoots and leaves and white rhinos are more grazers. Zoos feed them soy and alfalfa.)
- A group of rhinos is called a "crash."
- Black rhinos are the most aggressive of the species, and they can attack at speeds of 50 km/h. But such attacks are rare and most black rhinos would more typically be found snoozing in the shade.
- The rhino horn is made of the same stuff as human fingernails.
- Rhino moms take 15 months to give birth.
- Rhino babies can walk within 10 minutes.
- Rhinos have notoriously poor eyesight, but there's nothing wrong with their intestines: A white rhino produces about 50 pounds of poo a day.
- Rhinos somehow managed to survive for 40 million years. Then we turned up.

Rhino poaching has grown increasingly alarming. Last year, more than 1,000 white rhinos were slaughtered in South Africa alone.

Do the math: That's five per cent of the surviving population.

World Rhino Day is over for another year. I'm not sure it's doing any good — South Africa is home to 83 per cent of the world's rhinos, and this year, poachers have already killed 787 rhinos in that country.

If the current rate of poaching continues, rhino deaths will exceed rhino births by 2016 to 2018.

And you know what that means.

'No more stuck skunks!' PETA, college prez urge Ohio students to crush cans

An Ohio college president says the school supports safety for skunks, and for other furry creatures, too.

Miami University President David Hodge has thanked People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals for its offer to send safety posters after a skunk recently got its head stuck in a beer can near a fraternity house. The posters urge people to crush cans for animal safety.

Hodge wrote to PETA to say that the Advocates for Animals student group will work on the poster safety campaign. He says the school appreciates the effort to remind the community to crush and recycle cans, not only to preserve resources but to protect animals from harm.

"We share your desire to have no more stuck skunks!" Hodge wrote.

The posters PETA offered to send to Miami show a raccoon with head stuck in a tin can and tell the reader to crush cans for animal safety, urging: "Don't let this happen again."

Denzel fearless when a moral dichotomy is cast

First among equals. Denzel Washington is the rare star who has built a career playing dubious characters

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

In 2001 Denzel Washington won his first Best Actor Academy Award. The movie was Training Day and Washington's performance as the corrupt Los Angeles Police Department narcotics officer Alonzo Harris established the actor's propensity for playing ambiguous antiheroes.

Is there another A-list leading man who explores the dark side of his characters as often as Washington? Will Smith and Tom Cruise occasionally let the heroic side of their on-screen personas take a back seat, but Washington revels in mucking around in the mud. From Training Day to American Gangster, Safe House to Flight, he has crafted complex characters you wouldn't want to sit next to on the bus.

This weekend he's back as Robert McCall, home improvement store manager by day, equalizer of odds by night. Based on the cult 1980s television show The Equalizer starring Edward Woodward, the film begins with the former black ops commando trying to leave his violent ways in the past.

He meets his greatest adversary just when he thought that part of his life was over. Namely, the Russian mob leans on him after he tries to protect a young woman (Chloë Grace Moretz) from her pimp.

Exploring the dark side

No other superstar seems as comfortable with moral haziness as Washington.

No other superstar seems as comfortable with moral haziness as Washington. In American Gangster, for instance, he was Frank Lucas, the one-time driver for a Harlem mob boss who rose to the top of the drug world by flooding the streets of Manhattan with cheap, high-grade heroin smuggled into the United States in the coffins of dead soldiers returning from Vietnam. He's a dichotomy — bloodthirsty and ruthless, but he also attends church every Sunday with his mother.

In Flight, he played troubled pilot Whip Whitaker, an anti-hero who is functional in day-to-day life despite his predilection for wine, women and cocaine.

He's charming one minute, enraged the next and passed out on the floor the minute after that.

Washington manages to subtly capture the ego and hubris that allows Whitaker to present a sober face to the public while bringing us into the messy world of addiction.

The actor has played his share of assorted good guys over the years — Ricochet's cop-turned-attorney and Don Pedro of Aragon in Much Ado About Nothing — but it is his willingness to mine the heroism of the nasty men he plays that makes him one of the most interesting A-listers.

No more Mr. Knife Guy

Weapons of messy destruction

It's amazing what you can get done with the right tools. In designing the climactic battle in The Equalizer, in which Denzel Washington's retired special ops mystery man takes on a team of Russian mobsters in a Home Depot-like store using just what's available on the shelves, director Antoine Fuqua learned quite a bit about what makes a handy weapon.

"Now in my brain, everything's a weapon. You can do some interesting things, if you think of it that way," Fuqua tells Metro.

When it comes to a topic like this, there's really nothing better than a hands-on demonstration, which Fuqua happily provided using a butter knife just lying around the hotel suite where we met up. "A butter knife is still sharp, so you could still do damage with a butter knife if you cut across somebody's skin," he says, brandishing the blade. "We're fragile, so it's going to cut you. Or a blunt force." To drive the point home, he pretends to jab me several times with the butt of the knife.

"Cut off the blade and you've still got a weapon. It doesn't make a difference, if somebody knows how to do it, they know how to do it," he says. "They're going to use your festival badge lanyard and choke you with it. 'You got a gun? Oh, nice. I've got a butter knife and a corkscrew.'" NED EHRBAR/ METRO IN HOLLYWOOD

Leonard Cohen has wanted a cigarette for a long, long time, and now he's going to have one. The legendary singer-songwriter turned 80 this weekend, and to celebrate he's planning to take up smoking again, a habit he kicked when he was in his 50s. "Quite seriously, does anyone know where you can buy a Turkish or Greek cigarette?" he asked, according to the San Francisco Chronicle. "I'm looking forward to that first smoke. I've been thinking about that for 30 years. It's one of the few consistent strings of thoughts I've been able to locate."

Now, Kris and Bruce Jenner have officially filed for divorce, and much like everything else in their E!-sponsored, reality show life, they're going to work this one out in public. According to court documents "obtained" by E! News, the couple is calling it quits over irreconcilable differences and seeking joint custody of their last remaining kid at home, 17-year-old Kylie Jenner. They list the official separation date as June 1, 2013, which is actually pretty noteworthy, since they didn't officially announce it until last October. Do you understand the uncharacteristic levels of restraint and discretion it must've taken them to keep quiet about something for four whole months? That's just not like them.

Most notably, one user threatened to release illegally obtained nude photos of the actress in retaliation for her speech, going so far as to set up a site counting down to the supposed release. How-to Avoid getting sick on the plane

1. From the second you board the plane until you are at your destination, never touch your face. Eye and nose rubbing is taboo.
2. Wipe down arm rests and your tray table — especially the latch — with a Wet One. Ignore the looks you might get.
3. Only drink water you can see is coming from a bottle. (The ice is OK.) Never drink the coffee or tea.
4. In the lavatory, use the anti-bacterial gel instead of the soap and water. Or bring your own.
5. Never put anything in the seat pocket in front of you. Avoid over-handling anything that is already in the seat pocket.
6. Forego the dab of antibiotic ointment in the nostrils. It's a myth. DOUG WALLACE/METRO

In the name of love. Suites for the super rich

From gold-plated iPads to helipads and a diamond ring in lieu of a pillow mint, posh hotels around the world are upping the ante on honeymoon suite perks. Welcome to hotel suites for the one per cent, where tens of thousands of dollars is nothing to spend in the name of love.

New York Palace

It may sound extravagant to throw in a diamond ring with a hotel reservation, but given that the Jewel Suite at the New York Palace costs $25,000 a night, the ring could be construed as a courtesy amenity.

While some hotels offer their VIP guests a complimentary bottle of bubbly, fruit basket or box of chocolates, the New York Palace comes with a gem worth $2,500, designed by jeweler to the stars Martin Katz.

Burj Al Arab Dubai

Not one to do things the conventional way? Couples for whom there is no mountain high enough can book the hotel's helipad as their wedding reception venue. For $55,000, couples can select the hotel's Wedding in the Skies package for an unforgettable ceremony 212 metres in the sky. They'll be exchanging their vows on the same site where Tiger Woods teed off. Instead of a horse-drawn carriage, couples can also hire out an Italian twin engine Augusta 109 aircraft.

The Royal Suite at the Burj Al Arab Dubai comes with a personal butler and gold-plated iPad. AFP FILE

InterContinental Geneva

For the sum of a middle-income salary, you too, can book a one-night stay at the world's most expensive hotel suite, The Residence at the InterContinental Geneva. Putting your head down in the 7,000-square foot apartment will set you back $56,000.

With 11 rooms including a library, gallery, hammam, gym and sauna, the apartment is ideal for those who may be feting their wedding with out-of-town guests — along with those couples who may need their space after the festivities. AFP

Georgia should be on the golfer's mind

Reynolds Plantation. Carved through the pine tree covered hills in the state's lake country, this resort boasts plenty of public access courses

BRIAN KENDALL

Georgia isn't the first choice of most Canadians for a golf getaway.

But thanks largely to the growing fame of Reynolds Plantation, one of North America's biggest and most attractive golf resorts, that may soon change.

The sprawling lakefront resort midway between Atlanta and Augusta will be in the spotlight later this month when it hosts the Golf Channel's Big Break Invitational, Reynolds Plantation. Part of the network's popular Big Break franchise, the live-to-air 72-hole competition between past champions will showcase the charms of a planned community that includes six golf courses and the luxurious Ritz-Carlton Lodge.

Four of the courses at Reynolds Plantation have been extensively renovated by owner MetLife, including Great Waters, the Jack Nicklaus-designed headliner, which will host the Big Break competition.

Great Waters features a spectacular routing through a rolling pine forest and ends with eight holes that snake dramatically along the shore of Lake Oconee. Rounding out the roster are layouts by several of the game's top architects: The National (Tom Fazio), The Oconee (Rees Jones), as well as The Landing and The Plantation (both by Bob Cupp). Only The Creek Club by Jim Engh is off-limits to resort guests. A 120-kilometre drive east of Atlanta, Reynolds Plantation is ideally situated for exploring Georgia's Lake Country, a region rich in Southern charm and history that includes the towns of Greensboro, Eatonton and Madison. Greensboro, named for Revolutionary War general Nathanael Greene, was rebuilt after being burned to the ground and its inhabitants killed by Creek Indians.

But there's plenty to do without leaving a 4,046-hectare property that offers a spa and fitness centre, as well as water activities ranging from bass fishing to kayaking and water skiing. Biking and hiking trails provide glimpses of deer, red fox and bald eagles. Tourists should also stay on the lookout for celebrities such as George W. Bush, Newt Gingrich and John Mellencamp known to frequent the palatial homes that overlook manmade — but astonishingly natural looking — Lake Oconee. Country music star Carrie Underwood married Canadian hockey player Mike Fisher under a tent here in 2010. Though a family destination, the focus at Reynolds Plantation is squarely on golf. Last April, the resort hosted a heavily publicized exhibition between Sergio Garcia and Justin Rose that featured holes 15 inches wide, an innovation promoted as a way to make the game easier to play. And on hand at the Reynolds Golf Academy is acclaimed instructor Charlie King. A noted innovator, he believes that instruction must be adapted for each individual.

Does your travelling make a difference?

World Tourism Day gives us a chance to think about how we can travel more responsibly. ISTOCK

The United Nation's has proclaimed September 27 World Tourism Day. I recently spoke with G Adventures founder, Bruce Poon Tip, about the importance and impact of tourism on the planet.

Why is World Tourism Day important?
It's about raising awareness on the positive impact tourism can have in the world. Years ago tourism wasn't seen has either positive or negative. Then about a decade ago climate change became an issue and tourism was seen as a negative thing; plane travel became a big offender in the discussion around carbon emissions. Today, with the importance placed on sustainability and the way people are living at home — recycling, eating organically or using low watt light bulbs — consumers have started to make holidays choices that reflect their values. G Adventures is a firm believer that travel can change the world in a positive way. It's a symbiotic relationship between travelers and local people. Travel can be a form of giving back, just like donating to a charity as long as it's done right.

What is standing in the way of tourism becoming a positive force?
All-inclusive holidays are growing at an alarming rate. There is a race to build bigger and bigger cruise ships. Seventy-five percent of travellers are going to all-inclusives and very little of that money is going into the local economy. People are choosing their holidays based on price point and locals are not benefitting. The United Nations Environment program says that for every hundred dollars spent by tourists, only five dollars actually stays in the local economy.

How can your travel choices make a difference?
Understand where your money is going. Learn about the differences being promoted by travel companies and pick out the things that match your values. Sustainable tourism is about local jobs and local people and benefitting local economies.

Employers, remember my name!

Building a personal brand. Stand out from that sky-high stack of CVs by changing the way recruiters see you

LAUREN MARINIGH
TalentEgg.ca

How do you want the working world to view you? Creating a personal brand helps convey who you are and what you stand for. ISTOCK

A personal brand is an invaluable tool that can help you throughout your career — particularly when you're trying to land a first job or move between industries.

Personal branding can be crucial in helping sell yourself to potential employers and stand out from the crowd. Luckily, getting started on developing your brand is easier than it might sound.

Create a theme or image for yourself

Choose a theme that will be carried throughout both your online and offline presence. This theme may include a series of colours, fonts, and images that will be used across all platforms.

Consistency is key for branding: Use the same colours on your resumé and cover letter as on your Twitter profile and personal website. When you move from document to portfolio to resumé, or to Twitter and LinkedIn, everything should reflect a consistent visual message.

Build your online presence

Having an online presence is crucial for any modern jobseeker, and absolutely vital when it comes to presenting your personal brand.

While you'll need to use and present your personal brand in your offline life and in the workplace, having your brand online is an excellent way to put yourself out there — and it may lead someone to contact you to offer a top job opportunity or networking connection.

As you build your presence online, be sure to be actively involved in the online community. Don't just create profiles — follow, like and join, too.

Generate content

A great way to develop and fine-tune your personal brand is to produce content that reflects your areas of expertise. This content may appear on your blog, your social networks or shared directly with others in your industry. You can even identify promising conversations that focus on your chosen area and offer your content there — building new connections in the process. Generating unique content and contributing to ongoing discussions will help build your image.

Build yourself offline

Your offline professional activities play a big part in introducing specific people to your personal brand (and directing them to your online presence, as well). Networking and building an image for yourself offline are key steps to building your brand. Create branded business cards, and attend conferences, classes, workshops, and other events to give you an opportunity to network.

Success in banking takes certain skills

JUSTIN MATHEWS
TalentEgg.ca

You've gone from the piggy by your bed to a profession at the bank. ISTOCK

The world of banking is a hotspot for recent graduates interested in hatching a top career.

The industry has diverse career offerings, but making your way will call for a pivotal combination of hard and soft skills.

Here are four important skills and traits that employers look for in a prospective employee. These qualities aren't just a career-hatching asset — they'll also ensure your continued success as a new professional.

Industry knowledge

Banking requires a high level of finance and industry knowledge.

Successful banking professionals will need to be intimately familiar with the regulations that govern banking in Canada.

Moreover, aspiring individuals should not limit their knowledge base to the banking industry. Just as banking is vital to the economy, so too is the economy vital to banking.

Aspiring banking professionals should build their knowledge base in all aspects related to banking, banking regulation, finance and the economy.

The banking system in Canada continues to evolve, which means regulations do as well. Banking professionals are expected not only to have a sound knowledge base, but being constantly aware of new changes within the industry, as well as the regulations.

Analytical thinking and entrepreneurial spirit

The banking industry is primarily concerned with risk management. Successful banking professionals excel at managing risk precisely because of their analytical rigour. Banking requires incredibly strong lateral and analytical thinking.

Like consultants, banking professionals are valued for the ability to think outside the box, solve problems, and predict and avert problems that have not yet materialized. To this end, banking requires not only an ability to remain incredibly sharp, but learn quickly and grasp new concepts with ease.

This level of analytical rigour, the product of intellectual curiosity, lends itself well to innovation.

The most successful banking analysts not only complete their own work objectives, but also take a broad interest in the work of their colleagues, and how different work loads contribute under an umbrella project.

Cool under pressure

- Successful banking professionals are notably resilient in their ability to work independently in high-pressure environments that have demanding objectives, stringent and changing deadlines and a variety of new information appearing at a moment's notice.

Dessert. Chocolate Cherry Cannoli

This recipe makes 24 small cannoli. EMILY RICHARDS

Look for cannoli shells at Italian delis, specialty food stores and large grocery stores. Some bakeries will sell you empty shells provided you call ahead to order.

For a stronger cherry flavour, add a splash of cherry brandy to the filling.

If you enjoy your cannoli with crunchy shells be sure to eat them the day you make them!

1. Scrape ricotta into fine mesh sieve set over bowl. Let stand for 30 minutes. Place ricotta in another bowl and discard any liquid.

2. Stir in icing sugar and vanilla with ricotta until smooth. Add chocolate and cherries and stir until well distributed.

3. Spoon mixture into piping bag or large resealable bag and cut opening. Pipe mixture evenly into cannoli shells and place on platter. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or up to 2 days. (The cannoli shells will soften the longer they sit.)

4. Sprinkle with icing sugar or cocoa powder before serving. EMILY RICHARDS

Ingredients

- 1 tub (475 g) extra smooth ricotta cheese
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) icing sugar
- 1 tsp (5 ml) vanilla
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) chopped bittersweet chocolate
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) dried cherries, chopped
- 24 small cannoli shells
- Icing sugar or unsweetened cocoa powder

Easy peasy Ricotta Pea Pasta

Dinner. This cheesy dish takes no time to make and it will disappear just as fast

DINNER EXPRESS
Emily Richards
food@metronews.ca

I love making recipes that I enjoyed as a kid for my family.

Ricotta is used in many Italian dishes to create sauces, add texture to pasta and, of course, to make desserts.

I enjoy adding it to pasta with veggies — even as simple as peas.

Like most pasta dishes, this one does not wait. When it's ready, you should be, too! Serve it right away and have everyone at the table with their forks in hand.

Planning meals ahead and having pantry staples will help balance out your week and get you ahead for special snacks as well.

Whip up this easy weeknight meal and then you will have time to make some homemade cannoli for dessert.

This recipe makes six servings. EMILY RICHARDS

Ingredients

- 12 oz (375 g) rotini or other short pasta
- 1 cup (250 mL) frozen peas
- 1 tub (454 g to 475 g) ricotta cheese
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) extra virgin olive oil
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) chopped fresh Italian parsley or basil

1. In large pot of boiling salted water, cook pasta for 6 minutes. Add peas and cook for 2 minutes or until pasta is al dente. Drain, reserving 1 cup (250 mL) of the cooking water and return pasta to pot.

2. Add ricotta, oil and some of the water to moisten and toss to combine until smooth sauce forms. Add half of the Parmesan and parsley; toss to combine. Sprinkle with remaining Parmesan before serving.

2. Meanwhile, in a small glass, mix together the soy sauce, tomato paste, water and cornstarch. Set aside.

3. While the pasta cooks, in a large skillet over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the onion, both peppers and the garlic. Sauté until tender and just starting to brown, about 7 minutes. Add the steak and sauté until just barely cooked, about 5 minutes. Add the soy sauce mixture and return to a simmer, cooking for 2 minutes, or until thickened.

4. Add the drained pasta to the skillet and toss well to coat with the sauce and mix with the vegetables and steak. Add the cheese and toss until melted and mixed into the sauce.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 12 oz whole wheat spaghetti or other pasta
- 2 tbsp low-sodium soy sauce
- 2 tbsp tomato paste
- 2 tbsp water
- 1 tbsp cornstarch
- 1 tbsp olive oil
- 1 large yellow onion, thinly sliced
- 1 large red bell pepper, cored and thinly sliced
- 1 large green bell pepper, cored and thinly sliced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 1/2 lb flank steak, sliced very thinly across the grain
- 4 oz grated Parmesan cheese

Meat, a contented carnivorous writer, documents his and his vegan fiancée Veg's dietary journey as they travel and munch their way across four continents.

Veg: After a difficult time dodging cheese and cream bombs at nearly every eatery, Veg had her heart stolen by Mexico City's Cate de mi Corazon vegetarian/vegan taco restaurant. There she enjoyed a varied feast from but this soft taco filled with nopales cactus and wilted quelites (Mexican greens) came out on top.

Meat: The edible nopales cactus was again on the menu. This time it was atop my huge steak in Lu Cocina Michocana restaurant in the city of Morelia. Beneath the juicy cactus strips was a layer of cheese and a sea of thick oily gravy surrounded the entire cut which came with a cluster of deep-fried sweet potato crisps. The differing textures and tastes did not disappoint.

Follow Trouba and have fun

Advice for rookies.
Scheifele also trying to help groom Jet's new crop of rookie talent

Winnipeg defenceman Jacob Trouba's advice to this year's crop of Jets rookie prospects is pretty much what he practised last year: Enjoy the moment.

"Just have fun. I mean, it's what you've dreamed your entire life," he said Tuesday.

Second-year players Trouba and Mark Scheifele, the centre whose rookie debut last season has earned him a top-six forward spot, are doing what they can to provide support to newcomers like Nik Ehlers, Nic Petan and Josh Morrissey.

"I've talked to Morrissey a little bit," said Trouba, who cracked the Jets lineup at 19, straight from his freshman year on a U.S. college team.

"He's kind of bounced some questions off me and I think he's a really good player and if he does what he can and shows how he can play he'll be fine."

Scheifele says he is also trying to be as much help as he can to the new crop, which also includes promising six-foot-five centre Adam Lowry, but at the same time says he still has a lot to learn, as well.

"I want to be that player like Jonathan Toews and (Sidney) Crosby that get put out every single d-zone draw when you need a draw, when you need a guy to shut down the other team's top line," says Scheifele, who is expected to start the season on a line with top team scorer Blake Wheeler and Evander Kane.

"I think that's what I've been trying to work on the last year, trying to work on my defensive game. I think offence comes from good defence."

That's something coach Paul Maurice preaches regularly but he says it remains very much a work in progress as camp continues.

Scheifele, now 21, and Trouba, 20, both had breakout rookie seasons, despite injuries that limited their playing time. Scheifele had 13 goals and 34 points in 63 games and Trouba had 10 goals and 29 points in 65 games.

Defensively, Scheifele's plus-9 rating was second only to veteran defenceman Mark Stuart's plus-11.

The Jets won their first pre-season game 2-1 Monday night against the visiting Minnesota Wild. On Wednesday they host the Edmonton Oilers, who, like Winnipeg, are a young team looking to build through a draft-and-develop philosophy.

Maurice says the Jets lineup will remain pretty similar as far as the young players are concerned as he tries to evaluate their NHL readiness, but minor injuries may mean some veterans are absent.

Scheifele and Trouba didn't dress for that first game but are expected to get ice time Wednesday.

He too says they know they have to improve their defensive game this season.

The Jets finished 2013-14 with 84 points, in last place in the Central Division, and Trouba says the team is hungry to do better. The franchise has made just one playoff appearance in its history (2007), when it was still based in Atlanta, and made a quick first-round exit.

Willy or won't he be playing?

CFL. Blue Bombers starting quarterback questionable for game against Tiger-Cats

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers still don't know whether quarterback Drew Willy will be able to play in Saturday's home game against the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, coach Mike O'Shea said Tuesday.

"It's really just a question of how he feels," added O'Shea, who said they likely won't answer that question until Friday.

"We'll check in with him tomorrow and see if he can come out to practice and still feel good and then we'll just keep that process going along right up until the last-ditch minute."

Willy threw balls Tuesday but the team didn't let him talk after practice. He hurt his shoulder in a 26-9 loss to the B.C. Lions Sept. 13.

Fortunately for the Bombers, it happened just as they started their bye week.

Blue Bombers quarterback Drew Willy is nursing a shoulder injury. MARIANNE HELM/GETTY IMAGES

With Willy uncertain, the Bombers have been giving backup Brian Brohm a few more plays with the first team in case he has to start Saturday.

"I'm getting more reps than I get in a normal week as the backup, so that will help me be more prepared than I was last week," said Brohm, who would be making his first start for the Bombers.

Brohm finished the game for Willy and completed only six of 13 passes for 33 yards.

Defensive back Johnny Sears could be making his first start since July because of an injury to halfback Bruce Johnson's heel.

"It's exciting for me right now, it almost feels like Week 1," said Sears.

"That's my mindset going into it. Like everybody else we come off the bye week, we know how many we've got left, we've got to win this first one in order to do anything else so that's what we're focusing on."

Sears was initially sidelined with a lower-body injury in July but says he's been able to return for a month or so.

The Bombers (6-6) are in last place in the CFL West Division while the surging Ticats are on a roll with quarterback Zach Collaros back. While only 4-7, they currently sit in first in the East Division with a game in hand over 4-8 Toronto and Montreal. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirsty toaster peppy and fun

Review. Scion's xB tall wagon is aimed at younger buyers, but all drivers like its roomy interior and easy access

In 2010, Canadians were finally introduced to Scion, the entry-level brand that Toyota debuted in the United States seven years earlier.

Scion models such as its tall-wagon xB hatchback were aimed at a younger market, with their lower prices and funky styling, but they attracted older buyers as well, who liked their roomy interiors and ease of entry.

Dubbed The Toaster by fans for its boxy styling, the xB uses a 2.4-litre four-cylinder engine that can be ordered with a five-speed manual transmission for $18,960, or with a four-speed automatic for $19,980.

Scion models come in a single trim line, with several factor or dealer options.

My tester had the limited-edition Release Series 10.0 package, which comes only with the automatic transmission and includes a backup camera, special interior trim, unique wheel covers, wireless device charging, and way-cool illumination that projects "xB RS 10.0" on the driver's side of the floor, and a limited-edition number on the passenger's side. But it's a pricey package, at $2,585.

The xB is surprisingly peppy, with lots of passing power on the highway. It's fun to drive, thanks to its quick and direct steering, substantial feel, and a very tight turning circle.

However, it's very noisy — the doors close with a tinny sound, and bumps in the road boom inside the cabin — and that peppiness costs at the pumps. It's officially rated at 8.4 L/100 km in combined driving, thirstier than a six-cylinder Toyota Camry. In real-world use, I only averaged 10.5 L/100 km.

The seats are comfortable, and visibility is excellent all around. The dash is plain but the controls are easy to use — although it takes a bit to get used to the centrally mounted instrument cluster.

The rear seats are easy to fold flat to increase the cargo space. That great interior space is a plus, along with its price and the way it drives. If only it could control its fuel thirst, it could be an entry-level winner all around.

1 Kia Soul
Base price: $16,995
Fun to drive and well-designed inside, the Soul comes with a choice of two engines.

2 Chevrolet Sonic
Base price:$13,995
Available with 1.8-litre or sporty turbo engine, the Sonic is a great little driver.

3 Honda Fit
Base price: $16,068
Redesigned for 2015, the Fit is fab for cargo with its multi-folding rear seat.
